BEGKER IS SENTENCED BUT STILL HAS CHANCE

Death Penalty Imposed for Second Time, but Appeal Will Stay

COURT SETS WEEK OF JULY (

New York, May 29.-Former Lieut Charies Becker, today was sentenced to death by Justice Seabury) in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court fo the murder of Herman Rosenthal, who shot to death on July 16, 1912. The execution was set by the court to take place in the week beginning July 6. The appeal in Becker's case will act as a stay of execution, however,

Becker took the death sentence calmly. Before Justice Seabury imposed the death penalty, Attorney Martin T. Man-ton, counsel for Becker, made the cus-tomary motions for the discharge of the convicted man.

As soon as the date of the execution had been fixed arrangements were made to take the prisoner to Ossining in an automobile. Usually this journey is made by train and the change of custom for Becker occasioned great surprise.

The sentence imposed by Justice Seabury follows:

The sentence imposed by Justice Seabury follows:

"The judgment of this court is that you, Charles Becker, for the murder in the first degree of one Herman Rosenthal of which you are convicted to be, and you hereby are sentenced to the punishment of death; and it is ordered within ten days after this day's session of court, that the sheriff of the County of New York deliver you, together with the warrant of this court, to the agent and warden of the State prison of the State of New York at Sing Sing where you shall be kept in solitary confinement until the week beginning Monday, July 6, and upon some day within the week so appointed, the said agent and warden of the State prison of the State of New York at Sing Sing is commanded to do execution upon you, Charles Becker, in the mode and manner prescribed by the laws of New York."

Before Becker was taken to court to hear his sentence he said farewell to his wife in the sheriff's office in the Tombs. Mrs. Becker was in tears and almost collapsed when her husband was led away.

THE WAR DAY BY DAY Fifty Years Ago.

May 30, 1864—The Armies of Grant and Lee Were Engaged in a Her-Struggle for Position in Front of Richmond, with Grant Manuscrein Army on Roads Centering at Cold Harbor, Eight Miles from the City, and Les Proparing to Most Him.

Copyright, Els.)

Fifty years ago today the armies of as close to the enemy's line as possible. On the morning of May 10, Hancock's close harmy on the roads centering at Cold Harbor, eight miles from the Confederate capital. Lee, watchful and camp, was holding his troops in hand, ready to meet any move that his more power ful adversary might make.

The fight for position was tense and ceaseless. Day and night troops on both sides were marching, sitrmishing or in trenching, to the limit of their endurance. The weather was hot, and a powdery, choking dust rose from all, the roads The soldiers were worn with much marching and fighting, yet cach general moved army corps as a player at chess moves his pleces on the board. Every exertion possible to the soldier was demanded of him. It was a time of breathest struggle for place that every one felt was the pretude to a final bloody test of strength in battle.

H Grant could not break down Lee's harrier here, he could not hope to break it at all on that side of Richmond His success in battle would depend much upon the position that each side secured for the struggle. Lee now had about $0,000 effective men, and in a few days would have $,000 more. Grant had between $0,000 and 100,000; but as Grant was the attacking party, and was moving at a distance from his base, with large wagn trains carrying his ammunition and supplies, which required heavy guards, he could not fight as great a proportion of his strength into the battle line as his adversary.

It is a recognized principle of war that one man defending a strong work is equal in fighting strength to four men assaulting that work. Lee knew well the value of fighting behind defensive works, and throughout the campaign had chosen, with consummate skill and had determining induses on events in the confederate withdrew from the field, the confederate withdrew fr

These operations—the details of which fill many pages in the Official Records—had a determining influence on events immediately ensuing. They warned Gen. The scene to which the operations of the contending armies had now brought them served Gen. Lee's purpose far better than it did Gen. Grant's and neutral-

SPECIAL NOTICES.

At a unference between the general manager of the Chesapsake and Potomac Telephone Company, our counsel, Mr. E. H. Thomas, and Chalman Jesse L. Heiskell, held last evening, May 28, the manager of the telephone company stated that the service of the subarribers would not be interfered with June 1, 1914, their notice to that effect so WILLOUGHBY S. CHESLEY, force against it.

They confirmed Grant in an earlier im-BEGINNING JUNE 1, 1814, THE POTOMAC

pression that he could not attack Gen.
Lee behind the Totopotomor with hope of success, and that he must again attempt to maneuver him out of his position, as he had done at the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, and, most recently, on the North Anna.

Therefore, as soon as the results of the fighting of May 30 were made known to him, Grant ordered his cavalry to move to the left and seize Cold Harbor, while he prepared to concentrate his strength on that point, which, because of its command of roads, both to Richmond and down the Peninsula (the latter Grant's source of supplies) had become of the first importance to him.
